

RWDI is a valuable partner when you seek to...

Explore Innovations

- translate technical insights into CSR scorecards, measurements and operational realities
- learn how new materials and technologies can boost your green performance

Create Opportunities

- reduce costs by optimizing your product development and operations
- earn loyalty and credibility by demonstrating environmental leadership

Meet Challenges

- troubleshoot problems in your processes or supply chain
- strike the right balance between risk management, operational needs and strategic goals

Fulfill Expectations

- navigate complex and changing regulatory regimes
- manage all product and consumer environmental stewardship requirements

RWDI helps you account for – and manage – your environmental impact. Our deep expertise in fields ranging from green accounting to product stewardship helps you optimize your consumer relations, fulfill your environmental responsibilities, meeting your broader business goals.

Governments are increasingly requiring businesses to take responsibility for the entire life-cycle of their products – and to bear greater responsibility for their overall environmental impact. Consumers' expectations are also changing, with more people choosing to do business with firms that take their environmental performance seriously.

RWDI has the regulatory knowledge and technical capabilities to help clients not only navigate this emerging landscape, but to lead and thrive in it. Our team brings:

- understanding of the more than 80 regulatory product stewardship programs that now exist across Canada
- fluency in a range of corporate measurement systems and reporting frameworks (sustainability, triple bottom line, balanced scorecard)
- experience in both the financial and systems-design components of effective environmental programs
- a wide range of technical skills, measurement tools, and modelling capabilities to help you explore, quantify, report, and mitigate your environmental impact

Our technical capabilities are animated by a renowned culture of collaboration. We make your goals our own, listening closely to understand your context, priorities and challenges – and working alongside you to develop smart, workable solutions that move the dial in the areas that matter most to you and your stakeholders.